

Center for the Visually Impaired students treat guests to yesteryear performance

July 4, 2013; Page

DAYTONA BEACH – The Center for the Visually Impaired and Transition program students hosted more than 100 community guests June 20 for a luncheon at the Palmetto Club.

The luncheon featured a “Back in the Day” theme with toe-tapping songs from yesteryear performed by the students in the program, ages 14-21 who are blind or visually impaired and who learn independent living skills, self-esteem, social adjustment, community service and technology training. Student Sarah Knob, 20, earned a standing ovation for her performance of Aretha Franklin’s “Respect.”

As a part of a bi-monthly series of luncheons featuring entertainment, information and chance drawings the event had a record attendance and money raised for the Center for Visually Impaired. The next luncheon will be in August and will feature a magic theme.

For more information on the next luncheon, the transition program and other services provided by the Center for the Visually Impaired, call 386-253-8879 or visit cvicentralflorida.org.

This article is copyrighted by The Daytona Beach News-Journal and may not be reprinted in any form without permission.